

Food Networks

Feeding Zurich from the Millenial's Perspective: Let's Democratise Food Networks!

Rémi Jourdan, Andres Ruiz Andrade, and Yannick Wettstein

This article aims to show the problematic behaviour of the supermarkets who are dictating the food production and distribution networks and finally deciding how we have to eat. Taking Zurich as a case study we want to emphasise alternative initiatives which tackle different problems in this almost monopolised market. Therefore, we have created a manifesto inspired on the ideals and ethics that are being tested by food market pioneers towards a more sustainable future of food networks; against the establishment of capitalist conditions that have been dominating until today.

Contents

- 1 Monopoly or Diversity?
- 2 The Rise of Migros and Coop
- 3 Pros and Cons of Big Retailers
- 4 A Search For More Fair and Sustainable Models
- 5 Designing the Spaces For Democratic Food Networks

This work by Rémi Jourdan, Andres Ruiz Andrade, and Yannick Wettstein was created as part of the design studio Soil, Water, Labour at ETH Zurich in Fall 2020. The PDF is intended for educational purposes only. Its commercial distribution is strictly forbidden.

© 2025, Architecture of Territory

Architecture of Territory
Professor Milica Topalović

Prof. Milica Topalović
ETH Zurich
ONA G41
Neunbrunnenstrasse 50
8093 Zurich
Switzerland
+41 (0)44 633 86 88
www.topalovic.arch.ethz.ch